The WHITE HEATHER

VOLUME ONE

PUBLISHED BY THE CLASS OF 1921

Flora Macdonald College

RED SPRINGS
N. C.

FOREWORD

THE STUDENT BODY voted for the favorite flower of Flora Macdonald-- "The White Heather" as the name of this-- our first college annual. This dainty flower is found in the highlands of Scotland and is typical of Scotch virtue. It is dear to the heart of all Scotchmen as it is "Scotland's Heather."

To record all the happenings of the past year--both the sunshine and the shadow, to give the stranger who reads this book some idea of the true character of the work done here so that he may be impressed favorably --and most of all--to place in the hands of "The Flora Macdonald girl" a book which will, after she leaves her Alma Mater, be a cherished memoir of her college days--is the aim of the editors in presenting this, the first volume of "The White Heather."

CONTENTS

- Book I. The Classes*
- Book II. Literary*
- Book III. Organizations and Clubs*
- Book IV. Fine Arts*
- Book V. Commencement*

DEDICATION

With love and in appreciation for all that he has done for Flora Macdonald College

To the Editors and Staff of
The White Heather:

I HAVE watched with considerable interest your efforts in behalf of this the first annual to be issued by students of Flora Macdonald College.

In presenting The White Heather your aim has been to record the happenings of a single year in the history of our college--- to make the work as complete and accurate as possible and at the same time to introduce enough personal interest and individuality to make it a memory book rather than a mere table of statistics.

I congratulate you upon your success and feel sure that this volume of The White Heather will give many much pleasure in the reading.

Yours very sincerely,

Charles G. Vardell,
President.

Flora Macdonald

A Toast

Fair is the name of you,
Lovely the face of you:
Over the sea of years,
Reach we our hands to you,
Asking your blessing.

Mists of the drifting years
Almost would cover you:
Could we, forgetting you
Dare speak of loyalty
Or of true courage?
No! We drink now to you,
All glasses high to you,
Long and right heartily
Drink to your memory,
Flora Macdonald.

"Who does the best his circumstance allows"

President Junior Class, 1919-20; Winner of F. M. C. Monogram, 1920; Public Debater, 1920; College Basketball Team, 1920; Secretary Y. W. C. A., 1920-21; Commencement Marshall, 1920; President Senior Class, 1920-21; President Student Body, 1920-21.

Lottie is the kind of girl we all admire, for whatever she attempts she makes it a success. Combined basketball star, athlete and student, she well deserves the success she has had in every line of work. We do not have to wonder what you'll do some day—"when you're big," Lottie, for you are bound to win.

Vice-President Sophomore Class, 1919;
Commencement Marshall, 1920; Delegate to Blue Ridge Conference, 1920; President E. X. Society, 1921.

Elegance in all her manners we see,
Dainty as ever a rosebud could be,
Industrious, eager and ready to help,
Thinking of others and not of herself,
Having all womanly qualities blended.

Cabinet, 1919-20; President Zetesian Society, 1920-21; Testatrix Ruth Britt and Caroline Gibson; Public Debate, 1920.

We expect big things from Patti in the future, for with all her high endeavors permeated with ambition, it could not be otherwise. With quick intelligence she stands well in her classes, though they represent only a part of her interest and activity. If you doubt her sense of humor, ask Patti what is her favorite hymn.

"The sweetest garland to the sweetest maid"

Vice-President Freshman Class, 1917-18; College Basketball Team, 1920-21; Winner of F. M. C. Monogram, 1920; Censor Zetesian Literary Society, 1920-21; Class Historian, 1920-21; President Robeson County Club, 1921.

Margaret's is a friendship worth having. Many characteristics are accountable for her vast circle of friends, but the outstanding one is the sweetness of her nature. She is a loyal member of the class of '21, and is always ready to do her part either in work or play.

"O, she will sing the savageness out of a bear"

Vice-President Junior Class, 1919-20; Second Vice-President Zetesian Society, 1919-20; Winner of F. M. C. Monogram; Chief Marshall, 1920; Y. W. C. A. Cabinet; Vice-President Senior Class, 1920-21; First Vice-President Zetesian Society, 1920-21.

Fannie has sung her way into Flora Macdonald's "Who's Who," and if she keeps on at the pace she has set we will soon see her name in the "Who's Who" of the opera. Her numerous "satellites" have not hindered her having a word for us all. Just you wait, if the man will only leave her alone, Flora Macdonald will have another daughter to be proud of.

"As merry as the day is long"

Corresponding Secretary Zetesian Society, 1920-21; Testatrix of Class, 1921; Vice-President Palmetto Club, 1921.

Some man will get a treasure when he secures "Dink"—if he can manage to do so, for she is a capable, dependable and very domestic girl. Her conversation is full of dry wit, but it is never cutting. "Dink" is a true friend.

Here indeed is a girl of a mild spirit and a strong determination. Her calm disposition, together with her neat appearance, are characteristics that are often envied, but you would never know it from Viola. Vanity is farthest from her thoughts. We will always remember
"V" as a worthy, honored and admired

Prophet.

When it comes to sewing and cooking,
Elizabeth is right there. In fact there's nothing she can't do about the house, and we feel sure she will make some man

"How good to live and learn"

We know little of Archie's characteristics since she has chosen the life of a day pupil to that of a "Boarder," but it does not take long to find out that she will always do her part in every way, and we know that her's will be a useful life, whatever her vocation be.

MARY LILLIAN POOLE, B.M.

"Poole is my name." This can be heard at all times in the halls as Mary rushes to her classes. "Marie" has much practical sense, but her aesthetic nature is cultivated in music. Her bright and happy disposition has found a place in every one's heart, and "Poole" will be greatly missed by us all.

"She's little but she's wise"

Treasurer Y. W. C. A., 1920; President U. D. C., 1919-21; Chairman Finance Committee, 1920.

"Put" is kept busy getting out of things to do, and her time is usually occupied too. She has her place in our class and hearts, however, for "Put" is liked by everybody. As for her independence, consult Senior Statistics! But who admires the person who has no ideas of her own?

MARY KENNA WALKER, B.M.
E. X.
PENN LAIRD, VA.

"A handful of common sense is worth a bushel of learning"

"If music be the food of love—play on"

Public debate, 1918-19; Chaplain E. X. Society, 1918-19; Critic E. X. Society, 1920-21; Pine and Thistle Staff, 1919-20; Commencement Marshall, 1919-20; Treasurer Sophomore Class, 1918-19; Treasurer Junior Class, 1919-20; Treasurer Senior Class, 1920-21; Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, 1919-20; President Y. W. C. A., 1920-21.

Mary Kenna, familiarly called "Kenna," is a girl of strong character and practical sense. She is most always found in some form of "Y" work, where her executive ability will be greatly missed. Not only in this does she excel, but she can make the piano "talk" to the delight of her many friends.

ZELDA WOOD, B.S., H.E.

"The best of her is diligence"

Corresponding Secretary Epsilon Chi Society, 1920-21; Vice-President Student Volunteer Band, 1920-21.

We naturally think of the word "diligent" when we think of Zelda, for her whole soul is in her work. It is a pity we all cannot be more like her, for "all things come to her who labors."

Senior Class Poem

As the Hour Glass sifts the sand grains
From millions to one—then none,
And measures the passing moments
From dawn till set of sun;
Tho' little, tho' rough and rugged
Each grain, its part must play
To make the whole complete, compact;
Nor time nor tide delay.

So it is, that life is an hour glass,
Sifting the sands of time,
Compressing the golden moments
Into a work sublime.
We shall reap in the realm eternal
What we sowed in the life before,
As the sifted part of the hour glass
Is formed from its upper store.

And now that our school days are over,
And work is seemingly done,
We anxiously face the future;
Life's race has merely begun.
We shall strive with patient endurance,
The victories of life to achieve;
The good to beget; the ills to forget,
In this web of life which we weave.

When our nation is torn, and no longer,
The greatest example of power;
When famine and panic would threaten,
And clouds about us would lower,
A clarion note, penetrating,
Fathoms the depth of each heart,
And echoes reverberating—
"On to the fore! do your part!"

Bravely, unflinching, ne'er swerving
To heed the call, we dare;
Thru the neck of the faithful hour glass,
The grain of the college career
Trickles slowly, surely,
Assuming its rightful place,
In the life of the eager runner,
Where it marks one step in the race.

When we leave the vine-covered building,
The spring and "Paradise;"
When we part from friends and teachers
And the things that lure and entice,
We are sad; yet happy, expectant,
Struggling upward to rise,
Seizing the opportune moments,
In quest of the noblest prize.

Marion Manning, '21.

History of the Class of 1921

HAS it really been four whole years since we first came to Flora Macdonald? Yes, it must have been, for that was 1917 and now it is 1921. But it seems such a short time since we were Freshmen, wandering around like lost sheep. I can see some of us now, walking around the conservatory looking for the French room, or talking and laughing in the hall when a teacher comes up and says, "Girls, go to your room at once. Quiet hour bell has rung," forgetting that we had not learned the meaning of every bell.

There weren't very many of us even at the start, for our first year was also the year the United States entered the war, and so many people were afraid to send their daughters to school. And the war kept Sophomores from giving us the annual Soph-Fresh reception. But they all felt sorry for us and took us all to a moving picture show to make up for it.

War times were still harder at the beginning of our Sophomore year, and a good number of our class dropped out. To make matters worse, we had hardly started into the year when the "Flu" epidemic struck the college and work was suspended for three weeks. But every one recovered and our class continued with its full strength. Since peace had been declared in November and things were looking brighter we decided to give the Freshmen a reception, which turned out to be a great success. That year we decided to try for the basket-ball championship, but luck went against us and we were defeated.

We began our Junior year numbering eighteen. And my, how proud we were to be Juniors! Now we were going to have a chance to go to that long envied Junior-Senior reception, and walk to church by ourselves, and not in line with the whole school. And not only that, but we decided we would break our past record and really win in the basketball tournaments. We were such a busy crowd of girls that we didn't have time to practice like we should, but we managed to develop a team good enough to scare even the Freshmen, whose team was considered the strongest in school. Well, the time for the tournaments came. We didn't have much trouble in winning from the Seniors. But neither did the Freshmen have trouble in beating the Sophs. Oh, but we wanted to win that Final game! But the Freshmen also wanted it, and were going to try as hard as we were. The day came, and let me tell you right now they didn't win it. No sir, the Juniors came out champions, and there was never a happier crowd of girls than we were.

Then came April 5th, the day for the Junior-Senior reception. Never will we forget when we first went down and stood in line to receive that crowd of boys streaming in from outside. Nor will we forget the good time we had and how sorry we were when it was all over.

And now at last we are Seniors! It's a hard thing to believe, but it's so. Just think that this is our very last year at college and next year will find us all in different places in different kinds of work. We are not but fifteen strong, but our small number draws us all the closer to each other. And we have good times together, too, especially since a number of parties have been given to us. But I believe we were the happiest when our rings came. We showed them to everybody in school and laughed and cried over them until we almost had hysterics. But the thing we are most proud of is The Annual. For years the girls have wanted an annual but just didn't go on and put it through. We decided that we would do it if there was the slightest chance. And the result is "The White Heather." And the Senior Class represented is our dear old class of '21!

We are looking forward especially to commencement this year because the college celebrates its 25th anniversary. And we are indeed proud to be the graduating class on that occasion. Our principle part in the Commencement will be to present Shakespeare's well known play: "The Merchant of Venice."

And now the time draws near when we will get our diplomas and go out into the world. But I am sure we will always look back with pleasure to the days spent at F. M. C. and feel that we have been helped to live a better, nobler life by the influence surrounding us there.

MARGARET FOWLE DUPUY, Historian.

SENIOR
PROPHECY

Last Will and Testament

WE the class of 1921 of Flora Macdonald College, being of strong bodies and in our sound minds (that is to say, as sound as could be expected after four years of mental contortions) realizing that we will soon depart from this college life, and being in possession of certain property and effects, of which we wish to dispose before departing, have drawn up this document.

We do now declare and publish this final disposition of our property in the manner following:

We do hereby will and bequeath to Miss Watkins the love and devotion of our class.

We do hereby will and bequeath to Mr. Rice the sum and total of our combined abilities as secretaries and journalists to help him in his work.

We will and bequeath to Frances McGirt, Mary Kenna Walker's ardent love for Harmony.

To Ruth Lewis we will Mary Poole's electric hair curler.

To Alta Marlette we will Margaret Dupuy's soft voice.

To Mary Kate Covington we will and bequeath Fannie Foy's surplus flesh.

We will and bequeath Elizabeth Stenhouse's eager readiness to agree to Mary McLeod and Elizabeth's enthusiasm to Myrtle Wyatt.

We will and bequeath to Janie Council, Marion Manning's ability as a long winded speaker, and we will Marion's lovely coiffures to Elizabeth Clark.

We will Caroline Gibson's fond love for Geometry to Mary Mooney .

To Elizabeth Irwin we will Patti Britt's place as President of the Zetesian Society.

To Linda Templeton and Esther Britt we will Elizabeth MacDonald's dexterity in handling the French language.

To Catherine Goodman we will Edith Averitt's place as Epsilon Chi Society president and we will Edith's gracefulness on the tennis court to Sarah Barnhardt.

To Emma Kate McInnis and Elsie Johnson we will and bequeath Archie McPhaul's studiousness.

To Elizabeth Clark we will and bequeath Lottie Hand's ability to catch on to jokes.

To Helen Street we will Sarah Dixon's lovely flow of slang, and Sarah's ability to make love (learned in the Senior play) we will to Helen Dickson.

To Mary Stamp Shaw and Belle Monroe we will Zelda Wood's light fantastic toe.

To Mamie Lemmond and Esther Britt we will Viola Hart's place in Mr. Pace's heart.

In short, we will and bequeath our Senior caps and gowns and all our Senior privileges to the prospective class. If these privileges are found too great (?) a burden for said class they may be preserved for some future class, who, not realizing what they ask, want privileges in the Junior year.

History of the Junior Class

THIS is an age of historians. To the history which we already have, hundreds are daily adding accounts of the great events of the World War; of the great men who lived during this period, and of the many discoveries that were made. Therefore, that all great events and all great people may be recorded in history, I shall join these hundreds and write of the illustrious and the unexcelled, the learned class of '22 of F. M. C.

For what will it profit the world to have heard of the Ten Thousand Immortals, of Hannibal, of Alexander the Great, or of George Washington, who never told a lie, and then never to have heard of—not to be able to understand from whence these splendid heroines, these shining lights that form the class of '22, come?

Therefore, hark ye, while I tell you the history of this wonderful constellation. In the fall of the year '18 there went out from homes all over the land a number of girls. Now all of these fair maidens were in quest of the same thing—knowledge. With one accord, therefore, they turned their steps in one direction—toward F. M. C.

Arrived at this great seat of learning, these girls, ninety in number, because of their youth and beauty, were given the name of Freshmen.

Straightway the Freshmen elected officers, and, that you may know how truly wonderful they were, I will tell you that unconsciously they chose their officers so that each one represented a State—President, Elizabeth Irwin, Virginia; Vice-President, Eloise Knight, Florida; Secretary, Sarah Barnhardt, North Carolina; Treasurer, Winifred O. Rear, Georgia.

These maidens grew in fame, for in that year they did win a decisive victory over the Seniors in Basketball. And so well did they conduct themselves during this year, and so wisely did they answer all questions asked by the teachers that all the college marvelled and sought to do them honor. Therefore they were proclaimed Sophomores at the end of the year.

The Sophomores returned the next year, but not so many, for as meteors fall from planets, so some had fallen from this great constellation, and there now remained thirty-five. When these Sophomores saw that labor was scarce and that there was turmoil and upheaval abroad in the land, they stepped in and did a great deed. That the burden might be lightened for others and that they might have money with which to write their names in F. M. C., these Sophs each ironed one hour a week. And because of this great deed and also because of their increased knowledge they were called Juniors at the end of the year.

And the next year these twenty-five Juniors (ten meteors had fallen) together with their sister class (the Freshmen) won in the cotton picking contest. Thus they again did a great deed by helping to pay off the college debt. And by this deed their fame reached its zenith and they were known as Seniors.

And now I charge you, who have read this history, that in the future when others ask, "Of what and from whence come these wonderful stars?" shake not thy golden or thy hoary locks—or perhaps thy bald head, and say: "I know not"—but with head held high, say unto them: "'Tis the class of '22 of F. M. C."

History of the Sophomore Class

WE, some one hundred of us, arrived at Flora Macdonald College, Red Springs, N. C., in the fall of the year 1919. We were that large, interesting, and VERY important body of girls commonly known as the Freshman class. We lived through all the agony of the first few days that every young, extremely green Freshman does. We saw all the strange things that we tried to seem used to, we did all the queer things that seemed to be expected of us and above all we met all the people whose names we knew and never could remember. But from the very first we were proud of being Freshmen, proud of being a CLASS to stick together through thick and thin, through the woes of tests and the throes of home-sickness, as well as through all the nice "thrilly" things that can happen at College.

Never will we forget the time when we were organized, when Miss Johnston began to announce our meetings at mail-call and we would be left all alone in our glory without even a kind (but greatly amused) sister Junior to preside! The three most important things that happened to us, as a class, after that last year, were the Sophomore-Freshman reception, our decision to lay the foundation of a swimming pool for the college when we leave as graduates, and commencement. The reception we all worked for, and enjoyed as we do every break from the routine of school life; the swimming pool is just the best idea ever, we think, for a "parting gift," and commencement—well, you might not think that would be a particularly exciting time for Freshmen, but it was. It was then that we felt more fully than ever before the warm spirit of comradeship and saw more clearly the true worth of this time of preparation for our real work in life.

Last fall how good it was to be back! We never could have imagined till then the altogether "grand and glorious" feeling of being Sophomores. That is one of the things that you can hear described all your Freshman year—but—just wait till you feel it! And here comes the biggest thing we did: At the first of the school year the college authorities found it almost impossible to get help for the work around the house, so our class volunteered to do all the sweeping of the second, third, and fourth floors of our buildings. It was not always easy to do, but we kept it up for the whole first term and we are glad we did it.

And now we really must stop talking about our class; of course we are proud of it, and of course we expect to do great things in the future, and—but there! this is a history, not a prophecy.

The White Heather

From "A Handful of Heather," by Henry Van Dyke

MEMORY is a capricious and arbitrary creature. You can never tell what pebble she will pick up from the shore of life to keep among her treasures or what inconspicuous flower of the field she will preserve as the symbol of "Thoughts that do often lie too deep for tears." The thing that pleases her is the thing that she will hold fast. And yet I do not doubt that the most important things are always the best remembered; only we must learn that the real importance of what we see and hear in the world is to be measured at last by its meaning, its significance, its intimacy with the heart of our heart and the life of our life. And when we find a little token of the past very safely and imperishably kept among our recollections we must believe that memory has made no mistake. It is because that little thing has entered into our experience most deeply, that it stays with us and we cannot lose it. * * *

There is a small flower trembling on its stem in some hidden nook beneath the open sky, that never withers through all the changing years; the wind passes over it, but it is not gone—it abideth forever in your soul, an amaranthine blossom of beauty and truth.

White heather is not an easy flower to find. You may look for it among the highlands for a day without success. And when it is discovered there is little outward charm to commend it. It lacks the grace of the dainty bells that hang so abundantly from the Erica Tetralix, and the pink glow of the innumerable blossoms of the common heather. But then it is a SYMBOL. It is the Scotch Edelweiss. It means sincere affection, and unselfish love, and tender wishes as pure as prayers. I shall always remember the evening when I found the white heather on the moorland above Glen Ericht. Or, rather, it was not that I found it, but my companion, the gentle Mistress of the Glen, whose hair was as white as the tiny blossoms, and yet whose eyes were far quicker than mine to see and name every flower that bloomed in those lofty, widespread fields.

And I dare to hope that I too have known something of the meaning of the White Heather since that evening when the Mistress of the Glen picked the spray and gave it to me on the lonely moor. "And now," she said, "you will be going home across the sea; and you have been welcome here, but it is time that you should go, for there is the place where your real duties and troubles and joys are waiting for you. And if you have left any misunderstandings behind you, you will try to clear them up, and if there have been any quarrels, you will heal them. Carry this sprig of White Heather with you. It's not the bonniest blossom in Scotland, but it's the dearest, for the message that it brings. And you will remember that love is not getting, but giving; not a wild dream of pleasure and a madness of desire—oh no, love is not that—it is goodness and honor and peace and pure living—yes, love is that, and it is the best thing in the world, and the thing that lives longest. And that is what I am wishing for you and yours with this bit of White Heather."

College Song

Far away from noisy tumult
And the city's throng
Stands our cherished Alma Mater,
Worthy of our song.

On her wide and spacious campus
Springs of crystal rise,
Which for joy and health and beauty
She shall ever prize.

Stately pine trees waving o'er her,
Proud her guard to be,
Whisper faith and hope and courage—
Faithful listens she.

Chorus:

Now we lift our joyous chorus,
Full of love to thee.
Hail to thee, O Alma Mater!
Hail, Oh F. M. C.!

Friend O' Mine

It makes no difference where I be,
I'll not forget you, F. M. C.
I love you more than tongue can tell,
In spite of lectures, rules and bell.

And when I leave you, dear old school,
The Soph'more Class, the swimming pool,
It makes no difference where I be,
I'll not forget you, F. M. C.

You're kind, you're just, you're thoughtful, true;
Your colors fair are White and Blue;
An ideal school, the girls all say,
Is F. M. C., the school today.

My greatest gift I leave behind
Is love, Oh College dear of mine.
It makes no difference where I be,
I'll not forget you, F. M. C.

Louise Cooper, '23.

To a "Breath of Spring"

Thou gentle, unobtrusive flower,
Whose fragrance haunts each nook and bower,
Where'er my footsteps lead,
In bondage holdest thou the Spring,
Thou pretty, unaffected thing,
Oh, speed the Springtime, speed!

E'en when the snow is on the ground
And dark the outlook all around,
Thou dar'st to bloom,
And gently wafted on the air
Thy better nature, faint and rare,
Thy sweet perfume.

S. E. S., '25.

And in the springtime may be heard
The buzz of bee and humming-bird
Around thee bent,
They sip the nectar of thy heart,
Of thy life 'tis but a part
To others lent.

Thou who shar'st what's given thee,
Of higher things thou mindest me,
Beyond thy scope;
And when my life is dark and drear,
I love to think that Spring is near—
Thou givest Hope.

When the Dan Went Over Its Banks

IT had been raining hard for three days and when the factory whistles lifted their hoarse voices on Thursday morning and aided by the atmospheric conditions, shrilled so loudly that even the bankers, lawyers, housewives, delicate babies, and mischievous children were aroused from their customary morning sleep, the Houstonians simultaneously opened their eyes on another wet pouring day.

At eight o'clock the front doors began to open and the male population began to wind their weary way to work clad in slickers, overshoes and slouched hats and grumbling about the weather which specifically put out their morning cigars and generally made things sloppy and slushy and prevented their usual ride to the office.

It happened this morning just as it had happened for months and years—an informal meeting of the commercial association was held at the corner drug store. At this point, Houston's main thoroughfare formed a right angle with its better half composing the business section of the town and extended as far as the river. Dan River is and always will be muddy to the point of supersaturation—but as to its size—ordinarily it would be no special feat for a boy to throw a silver dollar across it at its widest point, but there's not a man, woman or child in Halifax county that cannot tell of days and this day especially when Dan River was over a mile wide.

The commercial association adjourned and the drug store was abandoned. Mayor Penick, who owned, in connection with his title, a hardware store, was the first to turn the corner and view the "Amazon."

"Whew! Look at the water, will you! Who would have thought that this could happen over night." The others joined him and as if propelled by some unknown lever they as a body moved rapidly toward the muddy street that spread out over crops, gardens, fences, barns, and dwellings. Mr. Barker, the editor of the Halifax Gazette brought up the rear asking his deaf companions how wide to estimate the river in his editorial which was to go to press in a few minutes and on they went gaining speed and enthusiasm at every step.

"Oh, Mr. Penick!" The owner of that name having realized that someone had been calling "Mr. Penick" for sometime, gave a sidewise glance over his shoulder and seeing Oliver Harrell, the captain of the fire department, slowed down and at last Harrell breathlessly reached his side.

"I've been at your office, since seven-thirty. A message has come thru from Danville saying that a house with its occupants has been washed away and it was last seen in the main river bed beyond Sutherland and is expected here if it doesn't strike a snag, at any time. We have no way to stop it. The firemen are down there and the police are being rounded up now but they are doing nothing but watching." All the time the Mayor had been walking swiftly toward the scene of action.

"Look here Harrell," the Mayor was partially composed, "go to the store and have them send down all the rope they have—get Central to send the alarm over town and have a big force at the Southern station as soon as possible."

Harrell ran one way, Penick the other. Preparations were hurriedly being made to stop whatever came down the river but very little hope was held out that a house, although small could bring its occupants safely down the river for thirty-one miles, nevertheless every precaution was taken.

The river bank was lined with all kinds and specimens of humanity. Women in house dresses joined the ranks. Men white and black moved around looking and feeling quite superior and important. Little girls and big girls, boys from the dress stage to manhood, thronged the banks. The business of the town stopped, if it had been fortunate enough to begin and the breakfast dishes and morning housework were forgotten.

No one living can remember an event which caused as much excitement in Houston.

All kinds of theories were circulated as authentic reports. Women were weeping on each others shoulders at the thought of a mother with five children destroyed. Another group was lamenting over the two months old baby who was the sole occupant of the house. And the others managed to hear things just as awful but no one knew just how awful it would turn out.

Pieces of plank, window frames, water melons, bodies of animals, trees, sign-boards—in fact a little of everything it seemed came down the river that day. The water was still rising and the old bridge which looked like a pair of enormous field glasses was threatened. The water oozed up through the planks of the floor and washed through the huge props which sustained it. That was another cause for excitement.

The crowd was wild—absolutely ignoring the rain and EVERYTHING but the river.

At last a message was sent back from one of the impatient men who had gone up the river to scout.

"A small white house sighted up the river about three miles—apparently the track is clear. The house seems to be intact and is evidently one of the houses from the mill district."

Everyone there was familiar with that style of architecture which is common to mill districts, and each one had his own pathetic picture of the rescue soon to be made. "It's coming!" shouted one of the watchmen.

Women cried, children screamed, the men even seemed to lose their self-control, but sure enough a house was coming rapidly—a white house.

Chains were stretched from trees to block its course, ropes formed a perfect network over the water—and on came the house half submerged in the river.

The crowd was breathless. The house struck the first ropes, which snapped like thread. However, part of the force was broken so that the second set, supplemented with chains, did the work and the house was at last a prisoner.

The next day the Halifax Gazette greeted the citizens as the Post Office boxes were opened. On the editorial page Mr. Barker wrote a flowery account of the extent of Dan River, deploring the damage done yet comforting the farmers with the sediment which makes even the overflow of the Nile a blessing.

Never once did he mention the houseboat which brought its occupants safely down the stream or the heroism of our citizens in rescuing them, but below the eulogy, our poetical editor thus molded public opinion:

We think it quite a shame,
That Danville didn't name
The occupants five
Which still alive
To our fair village came.

In their behalf we'll say
We had a strenuous day.
Excitement and strife
Are the spices of life,
Which seldom come our way.

The people thronged our docks
And many were the shocks,
For the occupants five
Which were still alive
Were a quintet of Barred Plymouth Rocks.

QUANTY-EIGHT per cent of the student body have this year been members of the College "Y" and have helped to make it one of the most successful organizations in the history of the institution. Aside from the splendid financial report, the work of the "Y" has centered around the Social Service Committee, the Missionary Committee, the Student Volunteer Band, and the Prayer Band. The first named committee has distributed reading matter to the colored people and to the mill people, the college campus has been kept clean and old clothes have been sent to the mountain mission schools of North Carolina and Kentucky.

The Student Volunteer Band, numbering fourteen, has been presenting to the students of the college the "Challenge of Missions" and the needs of the foreign field.

The Missionary Committee has presented weekly programs of pageants and other features—mission study classes have been conducted and a deep missionary interest has been aroused among the students.

The Prayer Band, with its twenty-four leaders, has been urging the further observance of "The Quiet Hour" and developing additional prayer leaders.

The financial report is of unusual interest, showing the many and varied causes to which the students have contributed.

Athletics

THE Athletic Association is one of the most important organizations of the college and every girl has a longing to win an "F. M. C." monogram. Points are given for tennis, basketball, volleyball, hiking, and baseball. Three hundred points are required before a girl may become the proud winner of a monogram.

The first match-game of basketball was played on Thanksgiving Day, the "Blues" (odds) versus the "Whites" (evens), and the game ended with the score 24-7 in favor of the Blues. Basketball practice was carried on throughout the year and in February the match-games were played. This year the Sophomores won the championship.

The four tennis courts have been in constant use all year, for the girls have been thinking of the tournaments which were to be played in April. Class tournaments were played first, and then the winners in these played in the inter-class tournaments. The games caused great excitement and interest throughout the college, for everyone was anxious to know who should be the champion.

The girls have also shown great interest in hiking and many clubs have been organized under the leadership of different captains. Not only do the girls participate in club hikes, but nearly every day a crowd of girls may be seen starting off on a long hike with lunch boxes under their arms.

"From Wilmington Star"

At the end of a quarter of a century, Flora Macdonald College may claim a record of glorious achievement. On the occasion of the commencement exercises there Wednesday Dr. H. G. Hill of Maxton endeavored to answer, as well as the question may be answered humanly, the inquiry: "What Has Flora Macdonald College Done to Serve the Church and God?" He reminded his audience that the splendid Red Springs institution had given to the church and God a notable company of "trained Christian teachers, home and foreign missionaries, church workers, nurses and Christian wives and mothers." Flora Macdonald College is prospering in its field because it has set for its goal the fashioning of the finest and most useful womanhood. None may say what it has contributed to the service of the church and God, except in the broadest sense; but no one who has followed the course of this college will have failed to gain inspiration from its record.

Home-Coming Week and Commencement, 1921

THE celebration of the Twenty-Fifth Anniversary will never be forgotten. Its beauty and enthusiasm are permanent possessions for all those who participated therein. Truly it was a remarkable event and the inspiring features will exert an influence over future commencements for years to come.

The long string of banners extending back to the first years of the existence of the college spoke eloquently of the love and loyalty manifested by the old girls. The classes are to be congratulated on the fine expression of academic spirit and the institution upon receiving so freely the affection so richly manifested.

The "old girls" came from all sections of the country—from New York and Maryland, from Georgia and Florida, from Virginia and Kentucky, and from the two Carolinas—from '96 to '20 they returned to renew their vows of loyalty at the altar of Alma Mater.

They found at F. M. C. many changes, but they found her bigger and better. They left F. M. C. assured that the next twenty-five years will find her still bigger and better.

They lifted the latch-string on Saturday and were welcomed with open arms by Alma Mater.

They passed out through the gateway on Wednesday and as the trains swiftly carried them homeward bound, hundreds of handkerchiefs fluttered from car windows in an affectionate farewell, and on the lips of hundreds of F. M. C. girls were the words:

O Alma Mater Cara,
How much to thee we owe
Of strength to meet the duties
That daily come and go;
Of faith and love and patience,
Of hope and courage true—
To conquer in the battle:
All these we owe to you.

R. H. RICE.

"AS OTHERS SEE US"

FLORA MACDONALD COLLEGE.

COLONEL C. MACDONALD, Junior United Service Club, London, England, has just transmitted to the Flora Macdonald College, Red Springs, N.C., through Mr. J. Kennedy Tod, of New York, a collection of priceless heirlooms consisting of a pearl brooch locket of Flora Macdonald's, containing a lock of Prince Charlie's hair, a silver snuff box belonging to Allen Macdonald, husband of Flora, and two pieces of the plaid worn by Prince Charles Edward Stewart while wandering in the Highlands after the Battle of Culloden. In a letter to President Vardell, Colonel Macdonald, a great-great-grandson of Flora Macdonald, writes:—"I would rather you had these heirlooms than anyone else. I am the last representative of Flora in the direct male line of descent. All of my sons and nephews were wiped out in the war. Your college is the most important memorial to Flora and the Macdonald Clan that I know of in the world, and the North American continent contains more Highlanders of Scotland than Scotland itself." These priceless heirlooms will be preserved in the Scottish library of the institution.—The Caledonian, New York.

American Students' Gift.

Twenty-five dollars raised last week by the students of Flora Macdonald College, Red Springs, North Carolina, United States, have been sent to Mr D. A. Macdonald, chairman of the Kilmuir Parish Council, Isle of Skye, towards the expenses of replacing the marble slab affixed to Flora Macdonald's monument in Kilmuir Churchyard, which was wrenched from its fastenings during a recent storm.

The gift followed the receipt of a cutting from "The Times" of August 28, in which the damage to the monument was brought to notice in a letter from Mr Macdonald, who asked for subscriptions to meet the cost of replacement, estimated at £50.

President C. G. Vardell, after telling the story of the Scottish heroine to the students assembled for chapel service, presented the appeal, which met with an immediate response.

AN AMERICAN MEMORIA

The Romance of a Scottish Hero

The Flora Macdonald College, at Red Springs, North Carolina, has an interesting history, part of which is linked up with a notable period in Scottish history. Our readers north of the Tweed do not need to be reminded of the heroic tale of 1745, and the frequent wanderings and adventures of "Bonnie Charlie" and his benefactress, Flora Macdonald. The story of the '45 and all the events which followed, from the famous uprising on behalf of the Stuart cause, which have so often led to acts of heroism and heroism of the greatest magnitude, are well known to all who take an interest in the history of the Highlands, where Charlie had his reward which the Government put up for the devoted friends who refused to be separated from him. Flora Macdonald married Allan Macdonald of Kilmuir, in 1750. Over twenty years later she emigrated to North Carolina, where they settled on a plantation called Killegray, on the banks of a stream called the Mountain Creek. Soon after settling in their new home

THE FLORA MACDONALD COLLEGE.

Sir Auckland Geddes, the British Ambassador to the United States, will visit the Flora Macdonald College in North Carolina on January 14 and deliver an address before the faculty and student body. The Secretary of the United States Navy, the Hon. Josephus Daniels, visited the college last month and in company with 300 Scottish girls picked cotton in an immense field not far from the campus. He expressed pleasure in seeing the girls rendering a service—helping to

Vera C.: "Because it comes from the pasture."

Missionary (to Korean Cook): "Above all things, don't let any flies get in the food."

Cook: "But, Miss Graham, they don't eat very much!"

Ellen L.: "Mamie, what do people take pharmacy for—to learn how to farm?"

M. K. W.: "Fannie, how in the world do you get in that dress?"

F. F.: "Why, Kenna, I back in!"

Mr. Dixon: "What did the priest tell the people?"

M. Barr (after desperate searching): "Ye heard nothing at all!"

Mr. Dixon: "That applies to a good many people!"

Margaret Hall: "Oh! I want to go to Maxton so bad to see 'The Man From Home!'"

Louise Oates: "Oh, who is he—who's going to be there from Wallace?"

Miriam H.: "Phoebe, did you ever have any kodak pictures enlarged?"

Phoebe W.: "Of me, you mean?"

Emily S.: "No, you don't need to be enlarged."

"'Tis the Truth That Hurts"

The following item was printed in the "Red Springs Citizen," April 29th:
"The contract for 'The White Heater,' the first Annual to be issued by the students, was signed last week."

The French Table

When dinner time comes at our table
We don't have time to eat,
So busy are we talking French,
You never saw the beat.

Elle dit: "As tu grande faim ce soir"
"Oui, Oiu, je mange bien"
"C'est vrai je suis content de voir
Que vous aimez ce pain."

When Mlle Brown comes tripping down
With her little yellow "cruche,"
The word like lightning goes around,
"Sh! fermez vos bouches."

And just as sure as there's nice old goat
And my mouth's just fixed for a bite
She'll say to me, now "qu'est-ce que c'est?"
And my fork drops out of sight.

'Tis not 'till then that we begin
To "parlez en francais,"
But then's the time we seem so dense
And wish to speak "Anglais."

There's Loosie, Alma, Bill, and Kate,
Then Flora, Jane and me,
And what we'll do we can't relate
When we finish at F. M. C.

Once in a while we get a chance
To sit by Mademoiselle Brown.
Then our poor plate gets just a glance
For the questions raining down.

So if you can choose this table
You'll like it fine I know,
And as for us—if we're able
"En France," we'll surely go.
HATTIE LEE McCULLERS, '23.

When Miss Johnston Calls the Mail

At twelve o'clock the old bell tolls,
And from her class each lassie strolls.
They gather round the rail and wait
To learn their luck, or mayhe fate,
When Miss Johnston calls the mail.

Some girls say "Down" and some say "Back"
And slimmer grows the little stack;
And every heart is hopeful quite
For just one note he did not write,
When Miss Johnston calls the mail.

Some girls prefer the lower deck,
And upward craned is every neck.
The hopeless ones stay up on third
And stand and stare without a word,
When Miss Johnston calls the mail.

Sometimes we get a postal card,
An ad—worse luck—that's awful hard.
If it's a box—Oh, joy sublime!
A girl has friends about that time,
When Miss Johnston calls the mail.

If all our friends could see the sight,
They never would delay to write.
Of all sad words I can recall,
The saddest are to hear "That's all,"
When Miss Johnston calls the mail.

M. Manning: "Where shall we send it?"

M. W.: "Marion, is your birthstone a ruby?"

Marion: "No, it is a grindstone."

Louise M.: "Who wrote Boswell's Life of Johnson?"

F. W.: "What are the Sins of Omission?"

"Oh, they are the ones we would have committed and didn't."

Louise O. (reading sign downtown): "'Park cars here.' Margaret, that must be a new car. I've never heard of that kind before."

Nelle: "Miss Fickett doesn't use a bit of discretion, does she?"

Lyda: "No, she doesn't use a thing but castor oil and iodine."

Miss Fain (tapping on door and coming in Vardell 28): "Eliza, why are you making so much noise? Don't you know this is study-hour?"

Eliza: "Yes'm, I was just hunting an orange for you."

Miss Dabbs: "Name the ways in which measles and whooping cough are spread."

First Girl: "Lend me a dollar and I'll be eternally indebted to you."

Second Girl: "Yes, I'm afraid so."

"Make Yourself at Home!"

Girls, on entering never knock and always leave the door wide open.

Talk loud or whistle, especially if we are studying. If this does not have the desired effect—sing.

If there is a "Busy" sign on the door, do not hesitate to come in.

If we are studying with anyone for examination, join in, the more the merrier, as we are particularly fond of studying with a dozen or so at one time.

If you have no studying to do, for the time, remain here as long as possible; take a chair; put your feet upon the bed, and lean against the wall until your own studying demands attention. It will facilitate the preparation of our lessons, preserve our furniture and support the wall.

Girls are requested to eat all food in sight; candy, fruit and cake supplied gratis to all who come—we believe in keeping an "open house."

Should the loan of money be desired, pray do not hesitate to ask for it; we do not require it for business purposes, but make a point to keep it always stocked for the purpose of drop loans to our acquaintances and friends.

If you see anything in our room you would like for a souvenir, help yourself; take it without asking. Don't Be Bashful.

All visitors are required to use everything on our dresser—rouge, powder, perfume, hairbrushes, and especially power-puffs and lipsticks; scribble on our engraved stationery. Do anything you like. Let rowdiness prevail—in short, "Make Yourself at Home."

ANNIE LEE CLEVELAND, '23.

Last Word

WE, the Annual Staff, breathe a sigh of relief as the last page of copy is prepared for the printer.

Yes, it is all over and we must say we are glad—yet we will not regret the trying days we have spent on "The White Heather" if all are pleased with it. We know that our mistakes have been many, but we are hoping that they will be overlooked and that the creditable parts will outshine them.

But let us say that if the Staff, every member of which has been faithful, had not had the coöperation of different members of the Faculty and the feeling that the Student Body was "back" of us, and the support of the subscribers and advertisers, we fear that the "White Heather" would not be possible.

To these and more we are grateful, and our last word is: We hope you will like it, for we have done our best.

A NEVER-FAILING THRILL

of delight accompanies the gift of flowers. They are the silent messengers of friendship and deeper sentiment. And their language is never misunderstood. They are appropriate for all occasions, and mean more than costlier offerings do. Our selection provides for all preferences and purposes.

Designing & Printing College Annuals

WITH our Art Service, equipment and facilities we are prepared to produce the Best in College Annuals.

The art work, including border designs, page groupings, etc., in this Annual, is the work of our Art Department, and the entire book was designed, printed and bound in our plant.

We invite correspondence and through our Layout Department can submit ideas in most effective manner.

No matter what the price, the purchaser is always proud of the work.

Expert workmanship coupled with rare business service guarantees entire satisfaction.
